Laws Relating to Newspaper Subscription and Arrears.

In response to a request, we give the law as it stands relating to newspapers and subscribers:
1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered wishing to continue their subscription.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publisher may continue to send them till all arrears are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have settled their bills, and ordered them discontinued.
4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher, and the papers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. Any person who receives a newspaper and makes use of it, whether he has ordered it or not, is held in law to be a subscriber.
6. If subscribers pay in advance, they are bound to give notice to the publisher, at the end of their time, if they do not wish to continue taking it; otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it on, and the subscriber will be responsible until express notice with payment of all arrears is sent to pay.

Parted.
Parted, after years of joy together,
After years of summer weather,
By one thoughtless angry word;
And that word by you was spoken,
It was thus love's chain was broken,
Still my pleadings were unheard.

Parted, and that bright elysian
All has passed before our vision
Never to return again;
Now alone in grief and wonder,
On the past I sadly ponder,
While my heart is filled with pain.

Parted, but I can't forget you;
Since the day when first I met you
I have loved you until now;
I have asked you to forgive me,
I have asked you to believe me,
Keeping sacred every vow.

All in vain, 'twas unavailing,
All my prayers were useless, failing
To recall the words you said;
Through this life we roam as rangers,
For one word we meet as strangers,
To be forgotten when I'm dead.

We won't guarantee a man who borrows newspapers to live to be older than thirty years.

A medical journal says: "Never sleep with your mouth open." But what the dickens is a fellow to do for breath, when he's got a bad cold and his nose stopped up?

"It's proof of the singular operation on the human mind," says a mental philosopher, "that when two men accidentally exchange hats, the one who gets the wrong tile is the first to discover the mistake."

A Glasgow clergyman hesitated to tell a dying man he would go straight to heaven, and a brother of the patient stabbed the minister twice in the head, on the ground that a preacher no right to hang back on a thing like that.

A Michigan man is about to get a patent on an improved peach-basket, to be introduced next year. The men of the basket is in looking as though it would hold a peck, when, in fact, the dealer has hard work crowding a quart into it.

Gen. Sheridan has gone down to New Orleans to pay his respects a third time to the people of Louisiana, whom he loves so well, and to whom he is always sent whenever any great wrong is to be done them by the Grant administration.

Nothing makes a young man so happy as to get around to the post-office after it is closed and see a letter in his box; to have his heart whisper that it is from her; to dream sweet and tender fancies, hallowed with love's sacredness, all night, and to come down in the morning and find it a bill of $7 50 for his last year's underclothes.

A long pull, a strong pull and a pull altogether and she has a real dress parade pullback.

Generally speaking we like to see fellows' heads level, but we like to see borer's slope.
A Tennessee paper says the matrimonial harvest is ripe. Well, why in the thunder don't you get your cradles ready and go to work.
A Southern carpet-bagger who signs himself "Adam," writes a Radical paper north that if Tilden is elected he will leave Mississippi. The Mississippi people don't care A-dam, if you do.

From Rockport.

ROCKPORT, Nov. 13, 1876.
Editors Herald.

We do not feel that we can give any other reason for the non-appearance of our letter in your last issue, than the fact that we were all too anxiously awaiting election returns, to allow ourselves to think of anything else.

Tilden's election (which seems confident) has caused many citizens to feel and believe "better times are coming."
We attended quite a nice little festival on last Thursday evening, at our church, given for the benefit of completing some work on the Parsonage. Nearly all our people turned out, in their good clothes, taking with them their liberality which really was a credit to the town. All the visitors were greatly surprised to find awaiting them such a nice supper, the proceeds of which, and a little side table, presided over by Misses Nettie Miller and Maggie Torrence, proved to be sufficient for all present demands.

Mr. W. E. Ches, is again in our town, building his Stave factory on a barge. This enables him to make staves at any point on the river.
Business is fair with us; our merchants are all selling lots of goods, of course the "Dutch Store" is included.

Our little singing school is prospering rapidly. Rockport will yet make "its mark." We are thinking very strongly of organizing a Drawing school, from the samples, some of our lady friends have shown us, we think there would be no trouble in procuring an efficient teacher, unless her fingers will be beyond our means.

From Breckinridge County.

PRINCE OF WALES, Nov. 10, 1876.
Editors Herald.

The election has passed. Great rejoicing throughout the county. A large majority for Tilden, Hendricks and reform. A Democratic gain in Hardinsburg precinct of about 100. A Democratic majority of 32. The town precinct heretofore, has always gone Republican.

The citizens of Hardinsburg had a grand demonstration a few nights since, consisting of burning tar barrels, wax candles, sky-rockets &c. I also understand, that there was some speechifying on the occasion. And now the glorious news is coming in from all parts of the country, that Tilden is elected. Glorious news this.

Edison Soldiers, Eleven years ago, we fought the last battle for the Union. We saved our country from division. Last Tuesday, we went to the polls, and by our suffrages at the ballot-box, saved our country again, from bankruptcy and ruin. And now, we think, that the time is coming when it will be an honor, to be an American. "Peace to America," and "good will to men." More anon.

The Long Six Days' walk.

Miss Von Hillern Twenty-one Miles Ahead, and Confident of Victory.

Neither Miss Von Hillern nor Miss Marshall slept either soundly or long yesterday morning, both being eager to return to the track. Miss Von Hillern walked with the remarkable ease, lightness, and speed that made her first mile interesting; but Miss Marshall, pale, downcast, and suffering, though determined, limped in her walk. To lessen the chill of sleeplessness and pain, Miss Marshall wore a black, lace-trimmed and beaded dolman, dark woolen stockings over her walking shoes' and fur-tipped gloves. Frequently in the course of every hour she was compelled, by pain in her blistered foot, to retire to her tent.

At noon Miss Von Hillern had walked 250 miles, and Miss Marshall 233 miles. Both dined at about 1 o'clock. At about 5 o'clock Miss Von Hillern was near the end of her 265th mile, while Miss Marshall limped courageously through her 243rd mile. At 6 o'clock Miss Von Hillern completed her 267th mile, and retired to her tent to dine, and Miss Marshall also withdrew at the end of her 244th mile.

Miss Marshall quickly returned to the track, however, wearing canvas slippers that gave her ease and swiftness of gait, and she soon completed her 248th mile, Miss Von Hillern being then about nineteen miles ahead. At 10 o'clock Miss Von Hillern had walked 276 miles, and Miss Marshall 255.—New York Sun.

The Turkish Complication.

Lord Beaconsfield's speech at the Mansion House is the most important indication we have yet had of the policy of the British Government in regard to the Turkish question. It amounts to a distinct declaration that England is prepared to go to war rather than allow the treaty of 1856 to be torn up.

We pointed out, in our last article on the subject, how this was the issue to which Russia was apparently bent upon forcing the question. The British Cabinet sees clearly what we have already shown to be the case, that the results obtained by the "Crimean war" are indirectly imperilled by the demands of Russia in regard to the revolted provinces, and more especially in regard to Bulgaria; and the question now is: Will Russia, after demanding so much, be able to recede to the position of accepting as the result of the whole agitation, a solution which while it provides for an improved administration in the provinces, shall not have the effect of actually depriving Turkey of its territory? On the other hand, if, owing to the uncontrollable impulse of the Slavonic movement in Russia, she cannot so recede, will the public of England, for the sake of retaining the results gained by the Crimean war, and especially the right of confining the Russian fleet to the Black Sea, support the present Government in a war?

As the negotiations proceed, public opinion both in Russia and England will declare itself, so as to enable the rulers of the two nations to decide these points more clearly. In the mean time the prince of Montenegro has done wisely, if the telegram speaks truly, to exercise the right of an independent prince, which is denied to the prince of Serbia, and make his own conditions with the Porte independently of any conference of the powers. If he obtains in return for a promise of neutrality in the event of future hostilities, the port of Spissia, which will give his country the outlet to the sea it has so long needed, he will be more than repaid for the losses sustained by the war, and may retire on his laurels. On the other hand, Turkey would be foolish to refuse him a boon which only deprives her of a few square miles of territory, and insures the quiescence of a most dangerous and troublesome neighbor in the stormy times which may yet be in store for her.

Value of a Dollar.

A few days since Mr. Johnson, connected with the Long Branch Bank, and whose residence is in Matawan, found a one dollar bill in the cars. He could not find an owner. A friend suggested to put it in some trust company with the proviso that it shall bear interest, which interest shall be compounded every year, and at the end of two hundred years a hospital be erected with the product. Mr. Johnson smiled and suggested that the amount was too small. We have taken the trouble to reckon what that dollar would amount to, and find that the final sum would be $131, 072. This to reckoning at six per cent. interest. Now, suppose Mr. Johnson should invest five dollars more to endow the hospital, we have the immense sum of $955,360 to forever keep the hospital in active operation. Some will say, "Two hundred years! what! that is far off," yet money institutions are now in existence in London that are more than three hundred years old, and if a man is dead it will make little difference to him if the money he bequeaths is invested in two years or two hundred years. So we respectfully suggest that the dollar, with the additional five dollars shall be put out at interest to found the Johnson Hospital, to be built at Long Branch in 2076, and all from the one dollar found in the Central Railroad cars.—Ashbury Park Journal.

PARTICULAR.—An extra-sentimental Nevada youth killed himself, leaving this as a reason: "My Annie is dead, and I must be with her, lest some rival angel should win her affection."

WHEN a young couple marry, they think they have seen the end of their troubles. So they have—the first end.

FASHION is more than ever devoted to a mixture of different materials used in the same toilette, and to a bizarre irregularity in shapes of overskirts, polonaises and draperies, whatever the term by which the upper part of the toilette is designated.

The Electoral College.

Considerable interest of late in regard to the Electoral College induces us to make the following concise statement of the functions and composition of that body. The Constitution provides that each State shall choose as many men, called electors, as it has both Representatives and Senators. No member of either House of Congress, however, or person holding office or trust or profit under the government of the United States, can be chosen as an elector. The choice of electors must be made on the same day in all the States, which is the "Tuesday after the first Monday in November." These men meet at their respective State capitols on the first Wednesday in December, and vote by ballot for President and Vice President. As the whole number of electors are allotted for the voters all over the State if the State goes Democratic or Republican, by the smallest possible majority, all the electoral votes are cast according to that majority. The electors can vote for whom they please, but of course they vote for the candidate of the party electing them.

When the electors have cast their ballots, the votes are placed under seal and sent to the President of the Senate at Washington.

The votes of the respective States are opened by the Houses of Congress, in joint session, on the second Wednesday of the February after the election. A majority of all the electoral votes is necessary to elect; and if such majority is not obtained by any candidate, the House of Representatives has a right to choose any one of the three candidates receiving the highest number of votes.

Considerable agitation has been made at various times over the subject of dispensing with the Electoral College, and electing the President directly by the people. In this way the majority of the popular vote would be made to decide the election. Whether a Constitutional amendment to this effect will ever be made is a question for the future to decide.

Lincoln as a Lawyer.

As a trial lawyer Abraham Lincoln had few equals, and no superiors. He was as hard a man to beat in a closely contested case as I have ever met. He was wise in knowing what to attempt, and what to let alone. He was fair to the court, the jury, and his adversary, but candor compels me to say that he by practice learned there was power in this. As he entered the trial, where most lawyers object he would say he "reckoned" it would be fair to let this in or that; and sometimes, when his adversary could not prove what Mr. Lincoln knew to be truth, he would say he "reckoned" it would be fair to admit the truth to be so and so. When he did not object to the court after he heard the objection answered, he would often say, "Well, I reckon I must be wrong." Now about the time he had practiced this three-quarters through a case, if his adversary didn't understand him he would wake up in a few minutes finding that he had feared too late, and wake up to find himself beat. He was wise as a serpent in the trial of a case, but I tell you I have got too many scars from his blows to certify that he was harmless as a dove. When the whole thing is unravelled, the adversary begins to see that what he was so blandly giving away was simply what he couldn't get and keep. By giving away six points and carrying the seventh he carried his case, and the whole case hanging on the seventh, he traded everything off which would give him the least aid in carrying that. Any man who took Mr. Lincoln for simple-minded man would very soon wake up on his back in a ditch.

—The fact is, the linchpin is out, the Republican wagon is gone to the dogs—the axle-tree is broken, the tires off, the spokes twisted, the hindboard out, and the entire load is spilled out, all the way up the hill.—Hartford Times.

The Unkindest Cut of All

The Philadelphia Enquirer republican, says:

But the most potent of Mr. Tilden's probable triumph may be given in one word—Grantism. President Grant went into office by the vote of a party, compact and all powerful. By his want of wisdom, and by his want of other things better still than wisdom, he disunited the party, drove out of it its men of real influence, he scattered its strength to the winds, and wrecked the party itself as no enemy determined to wreck it could have done. His Louisiana policy of the bayonet against the ballot, and which was the policy he pursued as to the entire South, neither gave Louisiana nor the South to the Republican party nor satisfied the sense of the North.

It was a policy of disunion. It prolonged the war years after war had ceased. It made impossible a true Union, for no Union can exist anywhere without the existence of reciprocal interest and feelings. In times of profound peace he overrode the Constitution by using the army for more political purposes, and thus arrayed the South against the North. He inhibited the growth of fraternal sentiments, of trade between different sections. He cut off the South from the North, and so cut off from the North the benefits of a rich Southern commerce. He used his high grand office for the aggrandizement of himself and his relatives and friends; he used it as if it were a mere perquisite; he wielded his authority as a master, not as a servant, he disregarded the public will, and made his own will to the supreme law of the land. He surrounded himself with men without the respect and confidence of the nation, and he made the principles of party that elected him to mean nothing but devotion to himself.

To-day we see the result in the ruin of a great party which deserved a better fate. The country has set its foot upon the Constitution and the noble principles of Republicanism.

Leap Year.

Remember, O, maiden fair! a few weeks more and leap year is gone!—for you, perchance, forever gone! How inexpressibly sad—how inconceivably heart-touching—the thought! But within these weeks, brief though the period be, much may be accomplished. Pick out judiciously, and with an especial eye to his total abstinence from youth, beer and tobacco, the lordly, leal and liquor containing young cuss upon whom you would lavish your gushing affections. Where is the girl, whether fluttering in the brocade of a princess or wearing the calico polonaise of the laborer's daughter, who would be told that three months is not time enough for the wooing and the winning of a good husband as may be wooed and won by any girl with no better faculties for the business? It is Shakespeare who knows—that, "that man who hath a tongue, I say, is no man, if with that tongue he cannot win a woman." This is scarcely less true, perhaps, than gospel. If it be true that any man who hath a tongue can win a woman, it would seem to follow, from a purity of reasoning, as the cheap disputants of some of the religious newspapers have it, that the woman who hath a tongue of her own—and there be a few of the sweet, delicious sex to whom the gift is denied—must be very nearly akin to no woman if she cannot win a man—and win him in less than two months, too, and be ready with the assurance in the end that she won him and didn't half try. But enough.

"Canst thou love me, gentle stranger?" Blushing like a rose she stood; And the youth at once acknowledged That he rather thought he could.

"Jake," said a blushing damsel to a lover that her father had forbidden the house, "I don't care if you're feet are big: I love you just as much." Wall, Sally I don't mind so much my feet, But I wish your dad's were a little smaller; I should feel more confident, you know, about staying."

"Ah! you're a friend in need," gratefully exclaimed a chap who dropped in and borrowed a two-dollar bill of Spilkins the other day. "No, no; it's you who are in need, my friend," replied Spilkins, "not I;" and the visitor laughed so hard at the joke when he went out that it must have made him sick, for he hasn't been back since.

Thistles in the Heart.

Bad habits are the thistles of the heart and every indulgent of them is a seed from which will spring a new crop of weeds. A few years ago a little boy told his first falsehood. It was a little solitary thistle seed, and no eye but God's saw him as he planted it in the mellow soil of the heart. But it sprang up, oh, how quickly! and in a little time another seed dropped from it to the ground, each in its turn bearing more seed and more thistles. And now his heart is overgrown with this bad habit. It is as difficult for him to speak the truth as it is for the gardener to clear his land of the ugly thistles, after it has once gained a footing in the soil. Wm. H. MURRELL.
[Successor to W. A. Austin & Co.]
BEAVER DAM, KY.
Has just returned from Louisville, with a full line of choice Drugs, Dye Stuffs, Cigars and Tobacco, Perfumery, Hair Oils, and Notions.
In connection with the above, he has purchased a large lot fine Whiskies, Brandy and Wines for Medical purposes—all of which he will sell at greatly reduced rates, having bought exclusively for cash.
WILL is a clever young man, a competent druggist, and the people should give him their patronage.
He will be happy to the ladies call and purchase their toilet articles. Give him a call.
"They tell us that 'hell's turned loose in Georgia,'" but Kentucky has not surrendered her claim to the flag bannered by Texas.

McLEAN county has let the contract of building a bridge over the mouth of Falls creek to J. B. Whelan at $2,400.

A good many of our yeomanry were in the city attending Circuit Court, most as witnesses, for as a general thing they are too honest to engage in a law suit.

ELKTON Witness: Fifty head of hogs belonging to Mr. Wm. Bouyer who lives in the northern portion of this county, near Clifty, died of cholera last week.

FRANKFORT Yeoman: The returns in Kentucky have been more promptly made this year than ever heretofore, the vote having been counted at the county seats on the 10th.

HAWESVILLE Plaindealer: Pork will be very scarce in this county this year, and the people will have to depend on importing meat for their living. Cholera has prevailed in many parts of the county all the summer and early part of the autumn, leaving very few hogs that will make pork this winter.

Everything has been quiet before our City Court for a week or so, which is telling plainly on his Honor, who is growing daily leaner, and his hopes for beefsteak are growing small by degrees. He advocates a free lunch House. Charley was last seen with a petition to the President for the release of Avery. He succeeded.

Wm Shull having leased the above mill, is prepared to do custom work on short notice. A large supply of the best brand of Flour kept constantly on hand, and for sale. The highest market price paid for Good wheat. Give us a call, as we have a Mr J. C. Jones a prince of millers, and guarantee Satisfaction.

A Valuable Premium.
TWO PAPERS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE.
The Informer is an eight page monthly, published at Elgin, Illinois, at 75 cents per annum. It is opposed to sickness, intemperance, impiety, war and tobacco, each department being in charge of a special editor. We have an arrangement with the publisher by which we are enabled to offer it free for one year to each new subscriber to our paper, and to all old ones who renew their subscriptions and pay in advance. They will thus get two papers for the price of one. Let those who desire to do so send to, or call at our office.

HOW TO GET A HUSBAND.—Take of modesty a large portion; unite it with urbanity and good humor; to which add good sense, and plenty of love, with a virtuous heart and a pretty face. Take Simmon's Liver Regulator regularly, that blood and complexion be pure and health good.
"From actual experience in my practice, I am satisfied to prescribe it as a purgative medicine."
"T. W. MASON."

Try it—and You will Always use Wood's Improved.

WOOD'S IMPROVED HAIR RESTORATIVE is unlike any other, and has no equal. The Improved has new vegetable tonic properties; restores grey hair to glossy, natural color; restores, dresses, gives vigor to the hair; removes dandruff, humors, scaly eruptions; removes irritation, itching and scalp dryness. No article produces such wonderful effects. Try it, call for Wood's Improved Hair Restorative, and don't be put off with any other article. Sold by all druggists in this place and dealers everywhere. Trade supplied at manufacturer's prices by C. A. Cook

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having placed in his aid by an East India Missionary the formula of a simple Vegetable Remedy, for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all throat and Lung Affections, also a Positive and Radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send (free of charge) to all who desire it, this recipe, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper.

GIVEN AWAY

To all persons who have Chills and fail to be cured. It is not often during these hard times that we ever hear of anything being given away; but in the present case we have an article that will bear the closest scrutiny and severest test in every sense of the word, and feel determined to place it before the public in such a manner that, there cannot be a "doubting Thomas."

To day all who may be afflicted with any form of Ague, or Chills and Fever, we make the proposition

To All Persons

To cure you with one bottle of Day's Ague Tonic. It never produces partial deafness, dimness of vision, buzzing or roaring in the head, or any of those unpleasant symptoms that follow the use of Quinine, it does not contain arsenic, strychnine or any other poison; it acts freely upon the liver and bowels without the use of nauseating pills; it can be given to those whose stomach reject Quinine, and the cures are prompt, effectual and permanent.

THE HERALD

Arrival and Departure of the Mails.

Eastern and Western Mails leave at 11 a. m., and arrive at 1:15 p. m. every day. Sulphur Springs, Fordville, Haynesville and Pelville leaves every Thursday at 6 p. m., and arrives Saturday at 3 p. m. The Owensboro mail, via Boda, Buford, Pleasant Ridge and Maconville leaves on Tuesday and Friday at 7 a. m., and arrives Monday and Thursday at 6 p. m. The Centertown mail arrived M10 a. m., and departs at 11 a. m. Wednesday. C. J. LAWTON, Postmaster.

"Never Mind."

What's the use of always fretting At the trials we shall find Ever strewn along our pathway? Travel on and "never mind."

Travel onward, working, hoping, Cast no lingering glance behind At the trials once encountered, Look ahead and "never mind."

What is past is past forever; Let all fretting be resigned; It will never help the matter— Do your best, and "never mind."

And if those who might hinder you, When the ties of nature bind, Should refuse to do their duty, Look to Heaven and "never mind."

Friendly words are often spoken When the feelings are unkind; Take them for their real value, Pass them by, and "never mind."

Fate may threaten, clouds may lower, Enemies may be combined; If your trust in God is steadfast, He will help you "never mind."

A Mistake Often Made.

Boys and young men sometimes start out in life with the idea that one's success depends on sharpness and chicanery. They imagine, if a man is able always to "get the best of a bargain," no matter by what deceit and misrepresentation he carries his point, that his prosperity is assured. This is a great mistake. Enduring prosperity cannot be founded on cunning and dishonesty. The tricky and deceitful man is sure to fall a victim, soon or late, to the influences which are forever working against him. "His house is built upon the sand, and its foundation will be certain to give way." Young people cannot give these truths too much weight. The future of that young man is safe who eschews every phase of double-dealing and dishonesty, and lays the foundation of his career in the enduring principles of everlasting truth.

A man dressed in a linen duster and a straw hat came paunting into our office yesterday and gasped, "Miss-Mister editor, sn-snow in Ot-ot-ta-wah tel-le-graphed special to me," and then, shivering, but quickly recovering himself with the duster, continued, "I have an original idea which I've weaved into a poem. Let me read—" "The snow, the snow, the ugely sn—" He said no more, but disappeared through the floor. We asked what in the devil it meant? and our devil came up with a wicked leer in his eye and said, "I did it, boss, with my little racket. That man was heer all las' night a-readin' his poem to us fellers, and we fixed that trap fur him. The boys'll set up his death notice fur nuffin," and he went out to get a corporation coffin and a corner.

They were sitting together, and he ardently thinking what to say. Finally he burst out with, "In this land of noble achievements and undying glory, why is it that women do not come more to front—why is it that they do not climb the ladder of fame?"—"I suppose," said she, putting her finger in her mouth, "it is all on account of their pull-backs."

One thing makes us envy the lives of the old Roman editors. They didn't have to turn the back of Webster's dictionary every time they got a contribution from some occasionally correspondent to find out the correct spelling of a half dozen old Latin grammar quotations dragged up by ear by the scholarly correspondent, as, "dubio et duorum est per morore," and "dumb viuncit vicinuous." Happy old Romans.

Sankey is accustomed to tell, as the origin of "Hold the Fort," about Sherman's message signalled to Gen. Corse, at Attoona, "Hold the fort—I am coming." The evangelist, however, does not quote Gen. Corse's reply, which was: "I am a short cheek bone and an ear, but I am able to whip all hell yet."

It was Pope who used to swear "God mend me!" and, swearing his favorite oath one day in the presence of a little boy, the boy looked at the diminished and mishapen form of the great poet, and said: "God mend you indeed! I think it would be a good deal easier to make a new one."

Do you take The Sunny South?

If not, send for it immediately. It is the universal favorite, and all Southerners are proud of it. Let a large club be raised without delay in this community. It is the only illustrated literary weekly in the South, and the press and people everywhere unite in pronouncing it the equal in every respect of any similar publication in America. The best literary talent of the whole country, North and South is writing for it, and it has something each week for all classes of readers. Its stories are superior in literary merit, and equal in thrilling interest, to those of any other paper, and its essays upon all subjects are from the best minds of the age.

In addition to thrilling new stories, a series of brilliant articles will soon begin on the CAMPAIGNS AND BATTLES OF THE ARMY OF TENNESSEE, by COLONEL B. W. FROBEL, a distinguished military engineer of that army in all its trying times. These papers will explain all the movements of Generals Johnston Hood and Sherman. Don't miss any of the numbers. They will read like a fascinating romance.

New and exciting stories are beginning every week or two.

State and local agents are being appointed everywhere, but let each community form a club at once and send on for the paper. Having passed successfully through two of the hardest years we shall ever see, it now challenges the admiration and unlimited support of the people. The price is $3 a year, but clubs of four and upwards get it for $2.50. Address J. S. H. SEALS, Atlanta, Ga.
